

Write Here! Write Now!
For everyone with a creative calling...

“A blank page, time management, self-doubt and the inner critic can stop an artist from creating anything. What we need is a definite starting point, a daily practice, and we need to be supported in an environment that encourages action and embraces ‘mistakes’” sally cranswick

I have created this course as a supportive conversation between myself and writers / artists / creatives, as we work through a series of guided daily life-writing prompts, which are based around my 12 Steps to Creative Reflection.

The prompts take just TEN MINUTES A DAY and core message is, ALL WE HAVE TO DO IS START. When we ‘start’ the energy and forward momentum can have a magical effect on many areas of our lives.

“We do our best creative work when we are happy, supported and motivated”

I know this process works and I know this course is what writers and artists need. My personal mission (which I conceptualised over five years ago) has been to create a course that provides a warm and creative base for artists to flourish, between some organised lines of happy discipline and support. I want to create a space where artists feel they can reach for their dreams, and that anything is possible.

“All we have to do is start”

We promise ourselves tomorrow, next week, when I go on holiday, when I can take a year off, when the dishwasher is unloaded, when I’ve finished decluttering the house, when I’m in the mood, when I don’t feel so anxious... but the right time to start is now; even if I feel anxious, even if the house is a mess, even if work is busy, even if the kids/cats/neighbours are being noisy.

The right time to start is Write Here! Write Now!
